college or higher may be hired to serve as the head of the Ministry's first-level implementation units; the retirement benefits and bereavement compensation of such individuals shall be under the same conditions as those prescribed in laws and regulations concerning teachers, subject to the approval of the Ministry.

Article 7

To respond to the rapid development of digital technology worldwide and enhance the competitiveness of Taiwan's digital development, the Ministry may, pursuant to the Contract-based Worker Employment Act, hire professional personnel specialized in related fields such as digital technology and its application and management; the number of such hired personnel shall not exceed 100 persons.

Article 8

The official ranks, grades, and headcounts of personnel at the Ministry shall be regulated by a separate Personnel Establishment Table.

Article 9

Prior to coming into force of this Act, in the case that the existing working personnel at the National Communications Commission, the Department of Posts and Telecommunications, Ministry of Transportation and Communications, and other government agencies have been transferred and assigned to the Ministry and its subordinate agencies along with their functions, their government service ranks, grades, years of service, remunerations, retirement, severance package, bereavement compensation, and other benefits and working conditions shall be guaranteed.

For an employee specified in the preceding paragraph 1 who originally has been reassigned pursuant to Paragraph 1, Article 8 of the Transportation Enterprise Personnel' s Appointment Act, the stipulations applicable to the original reassignment shall still apply. However, the provisions in paragraph 2, Article 8 of the Transportation Enterprise Personnel Appointment Act shall apply to an employee who has been reassigned to a post in a non-transportation administrative agency.

For the personnel specified in paragraph 1 whose new position remunerations are less than that of their previous positions, their basic (seniority) pay shall be dispensed at the approved pay grade pursuant to Article 11 of the Civil Service Pay Act. In addition, if their technical or professional differential pay of the new position becomes less than that of the original position, they may choose to make up the difference and such difference shall be offset at the time pay adjustment is made. A supervisor who has been adjusted to be a non-supervisory position shall no longer receive the supervisory and managerial duty differential pay.

If the personnel specified in paragraph 1 were the original employees retained following the restructuring of the Directorate General of Telecommunications on July 1, 1996, or those deemed retained personnel who were the employees of Chunghwa Telecom Company Limited and detailed to the Directorate General of Telecommunications between July 1, 1996 and June 30, 1998, who also have chosen to make up the difference in pay at the time of the restructuring but have not yet offset the difference, they may still be eligible for making up the pay difference in the same manner.

Prior to coming into force of this Act, the years of service from July 1, 1995 to June 30, 1996 of the retained personnel after the restructuring of the Directorate General of Telecommunications on July 1, 1996 shall still be permitted to be deemed as the years of service before the revision of the Civil Service Retirement Act coming into force on July 1, 1995, if the retained personnel have not yet paid the principal and interest of their make-up contributions to the Public Service Pension Fund.

For the personnel specified in paragraph 4 who have worker' s years of service as hired officers, clerks (or trainee clerks), or temporary works pursuant to personnel management related regulations approved by the Ministry of Transportation and Communications prior to the restructuring of the Directorate General of Communications, the compensation method shall be regulated by the Executive Yuan.

Article 10

The implementation date of this Act shall be decreed by the Executive Yuan.
